FROM THE CEO

Hello RepuGen Webteam Associates:

Successful Leaders

4th Observation – Continuous Learning

All successful leaders I know personally or have read about seem to have one common trait – thirst for knowledge. By knowledge, I don't mean only knowledge of their expertise, but a broad understanding of the latest trends in business, science, arts, politics, etc. A few leaders I know personally appear to be all knowing. I could not understand how do they find time for it. One of them, my mentor, seemed to be up on the latest movies, books, anything. I found out that he was very organized about how he spent his spare time. For example, he did not watch TV regularly but instead spent the time to read or spend with his family. His favorite discussion with his two daughters were the latest TV shows and watching good movies. That is how he was up on all good TV shows & movies. He also did something that I cannot do, read 50 pages an hour.

I like to read biographies of the business leaders who I admire. As you may have guessed, one common habit is that all of them are avid readers. Here are some living examples – Warren Buffet, a legendary money manager, reads 80 pages of financial reports a day of companies where he has invested or thinking about investing. Elon Musk, a forty-something founder of three great companies, PayPal, Tesla, and SpaceX, reads five books a week. Whether it is Bill Gates, Jeff Bezos, Tim Cook, or pick any leader you admire, thirst for knowing more is a consistent trait.

A thirst for knowledge is an acquired skill. I encourage all of you to start reading first, whatever you like, even cheap novels, and get in the habit of reading one hour a day. Once you get used to reading, start reading books on different subjects, and soon reading will become your habit.

Until next month.....

Ajay

KNOW YOUR COLLEAGUES

RAJ KUMAR

I did my MCA from Institute of Management and Research, Ghaziabad, which is under Dr A.P.J. Kalam Technical University. I started my career as a Software Developer in 2016 and later on joined GMR Web Team in July 2017. I started with little to no experience but through the support of my seniors I learnt many more new things and regularly updated my technical skills and am still working on that. I am passionate about my work and I love what I do.

Other than my regular work I love to listen to music, travel and watch animated movies. I am very thankful to my respected seniors for their support and encouragement.

VIPUL KUMAR

I joined GMR Web Team as an OME in December 2017. I got an opportunity to work on a project like University Frames, and I genuinely enjoy every aspect of it.

I was born and raised in Darbhanga, Bihar. I got my Bsc(IT) degree from NIIT. I moved to Patna with my mother. I have one elder sister, who I love to irritate. I was initially going to pursue my career as a software developer but luckily got a chance to explore the digital marketing world.

When I'm not working, I am eating. I also eat when I am working. I am a foodie, and I love to eat. Watching Netflix, grooving to the music, playing sports, reading, and doing nothing apart from lying on the bed whole day are my hobbies..
